GUESTS ON LAWN

Mistress of White House Host ess to Brilliant Assemblage at Garden Party.

RECEIVES HER VISITORS ATTENDED BY PRESIDENT

tiful one. The large group of personages, constantly gathered about the nostess, with the women in unusually er-laden hats, had, as a brilliant objective point on the other side of the lawn, a gray redand white stripped marquee from which dainties were served, while in the center of the lawn, between the White House and the great fountain, the Marine Band, the members in scarlet uniform, was seated. A dainty tea table was set beneath the trees on the west side of the garden, and about this, too, groups of guests constantly gathered. Recent rains freshened the trees, the lawn, the flowers, until everything seemed to be at its very best to do Mrs. Wilson honor.

Sociability the Rule.

There was unusual sociability in the large company, groups gathering all over the lawn to discuss the beauty of the event, while just back of the President and Mrs. Wilson stood the lat-ter's mother, Mrs. W. H. Bolling, and neck. The skirt was very bouffant with a pointed pannier effect.

She wore a large gray tulle hat edged with two narrow bands of gray tulle, the brim slightly tilted and a cluster of gray ostrich feathers at the left side forming the trimming. A corsage bouquet of gardenias and mauve orchids completed her costume. Miss Margaret Wilson wore a becoming gown of champagne-color charmeuse and lace with touches of green, and a green hat trimmed with soft-toned roses and foliage.

Mrs. Thomas R. Marshall wore an effective gown of blue and white polka dot foulard, with a white hat trimmed with white flowers.

The Cabinet Ladies.

Mrs. Lansing wore a becoming gown of deep he otrope brocaded crepe de chine with a white fox boa and a large black green taffeta, the skirt made of flowers green taffeta, the skirt made of flowers edged with tiny black silk fringe, and her hat was of white straw with flowers encircling the crown.

Mrs. Josephus Daniels wore cloth of gold veiled in black net and lace, with a white fox scarf and a black and gold hat.

Mrs. Albert S. Burieson wore dark blue and white striped chiffon with a broad-brimmed hat covered with blue and white chiffon.

brimmed nat covered with blue and white chiffon.

Mrs. William G. McAdoo wore Alice blue tulle combined with taffeta of the same shade and a leghorn hat veiled in blue tulle, with a single pink rose forming the trimming; Mrs. William B. Wilson a blue cloth suit with a small black hat trimmed with black wings.

Mrs. David F. Houston wore a mauve faille taffeta and lace gown with a black chiffon hat. Mrs. William C. Redfield wore a dark and white flowered foulard gown, with a black hat trimmed with white flowers.
